

Emma Meet the Therapist

Hi, I'm Emma, a Developmental Therapist at bibic. I am also the Student Placement Lead, meaning I have the privilege of working alongside schools, colleges and other education providers. This means that we can give those interested in what we do the chance to come along and experience life here at bibic for themselves.

My job entails working alongside children, young people and their families, using a variety of activities and screeners to determine their strengths, difficulties and ways to support them so that they may live life to the best of their ability.

I began working here in November 2022, having previously spent my working life in education, most recently working with children and young people with additional needs. I have long been a fan of bibic and the support they provide for children, young people and their families, and when the opportunity arose to join the team, I saw my chance, applied and was delighted to accept the role when offered to me!

bibic's cause is important to me as I believe that everyone has the right to be supported and nurtured in a way that enables them to thrive and succeed.

Every one of us is different, the world would be a very boring place if we were all the same! It is my pleasure to help others to explore and find ways which work for them to enable them to enjoy life.

When you meet me, you can expect a friendly smile and a listening ear. I am here to support you as a family and will do so as best I can. I am very calm, relaxed and patient, will always take the day at the pace of the young person with whom I am working and will endeavour to make it as stress-free as possible.

One piece of advice that I would give to families who are finding it difficult to know how to support their child in the most effective way is that although it may not feel like it at times, you are not alone. Here at bibic, we will always do our best to listen to and support the families we come into contact with to aid them in living their best lives.

If you are visiting us here at bibic I hope your experience here with us will be positive and we look forward to spending time with you.
